ticipation in research and teaching, BITS Pilani has signed MoUs with various universities/industries at home and abroad. The International Programmes and Collaboration Division on the campus promotes tie-ups with top foreign universities/institutions to enable students to pursue Off-campus Thesis/Semester Abroad Programmes (SAP) there. In SAP, credit transfer can be considered from a foreign university that is in the top 400 in QS/THE world rankings, even if there is no MoU signed between the university and BITS Pilani.

The institute has significantly focused on building its research capabilities by recruiting faculty members with a deep orientation for research. With more than 1,800 PhD students and 150 patents, 33 per cent of the institute's indexed articles are written with international co-authors, and 25 citations and 65 per cent of publications are in Scimago Q1/Q2-ranked journals. The institute has collaborative arrangements in terms of the exchange of students, faculty and information with several institutions. Every year, about 30 students visit foreign universities to do off-campus theses, SAP programmes, and internships. ■
