There have been several firsts the State has achieved in a mere nine years. It is not for nothing that the government, which is striving for social justice for all with its welfare schemes, has been described as a role-model. The strides have been so remarkable that not only rulers of other States but even the people there are hoping for a KCR-style of people-friendly administration.

The way KCR rose to the occasion and helped the anguished migrants when Covid-19 was at its peak remains a classic example of his quest to help the needy in their hour of crisis, irrespective of their domicile. He did so for farmers who were on an indefinite strike in New Delhi against the draconian farm laws.

And so indeed the fete! Spread over 21 days, and celebrated across all districts, this will be the perfect time to remind the people of what all the government has done for them so that they could enjoy a life of contentment.

The 21 days were so broadly classified that they reflected the state government's concern for people from all sections. In fact, it was a good augury that the celebrations began with a day dedicated to farmers. If June 3 was earmarked as Telangana Farmers' Day, the next day was Suraksha Day (safety day), which was spearheaded by the state police department; June 5 was observed as Telangana Vidyut Vijayotsavam that provided an occasion to highlight the achievements of the state's energy department; June 6 was celebrated as Telangana Industrial Growth Festival while June 7 was Irrigation Water Day. "Oorooraa Cheruvula Panduga" (celebration of water bodies in every village) was organised with gusto on June 8 while June 9 was a reinforcement of the state government's welfare schemes. They were followed by Telangana Good Governance day (June 10) and Telangana Literature Day (June 11). Telangana Run by the state police department was a feature of June 12. Telangana Women's Welfare Day was observed on June 13. On June 14, the 'Medical Day', saw KCR laying the foundation stone for the construction of a 2000-bed super specialty hospital in NIMS, Hyderabad.

June 15 (Telangana Palle Pragati Day), June 16 (Telangana Pattana Pragathi Day), June 17 (Telangana Tribal Festival), June 18 (Drinking Water Festival), June 19 (Telangana Green Festival), June 20 (Education Day), June 21 (Telangana Spiritual Day), the celebrations will culminate on June 22 (Telangana Martyrs' Commemoration Day), which will feature a massive rally taken out in memory of martyrs on Tank Bund.

In continuation of the schemes he has been implementing and bringing smiles to millions of households, KCR recently expanded the hugely successful Dalit Bandhu Scheme, regularized employment of several government employees working on contract basis, irrigation schemes, increase in sanitation workers' salaries, life insurance for toddy tappers, providing land ownership documents to forest cultivators, expansion of the Palamuru Lift Irrigation Scheme and distribution of KCR Nutrition Kits for pregnant women, which has drawn appreciation for its timely child care support. The Chief Minister was quite realistic and humble while stating "With the joint efforts of people's representatives, the government machinery and the trust of the people of the State, Telangana is achieving excellent results in all fields. The state has become a role-model for the country and other states are watching our progress."

There is no denying that almost all Telangana schemes have become popular as they help the socially and economically weak sections. It is no wonder that farmers from across the country have been seeking Telangana-type schemes. Undoubtedly, these mark major milestones for the Telangana Government administration, especially for the Chief Minister, who remained steadfast in the implementation of schemes meant for the well-being of the people. The manner global investments are pouring into the state and the way global business leaders are evincing interest in setting up units in Hyderabad and districts, stand testimony to Hyderabad's global city status. K Chandrashekar Rao has been going about his mission of making Telangana a model state for the nation.
